Legion Medals Awarded to Two Eighth Graders

Joseph Cosgrove and Margaret Anderson to Be Honored at Banquet

Joseph Cosgrove and Margaret Anderson have been announced as the 1944 winners of the American Legion school awards. The awards, including a medal and certificate to be presented to each, will be conferred at the annual Eighth Grade Graduation banquet to be held Wednesday evening, May 17, in the Antioch Methodist church.

Recipients of the award were elected by students of the eighth grade and teachers of the Grade school Monday.

Preceding the election, a series of five talks on the main points upon which the presentation of the awards is based was given at the school weekly, under the auspices of the Antioch Legion post.

Speakers and their subjects included Atty. Edward C. Jacobs, "Honor"; the Rev. W. C. Henslee, "Service"; Albert Kroll, high school athletic instructor, "Leadership"; Harry J. Krueger, "Courage"; T. R. Birkhead, high school principal, "Scholarship."

Character Development Is Aim

The program of talks was arranged under the charge of Otto S. Klass, Americanization chairman for the Antioch Legion post.

Klass states that presentation of the awards by the Legion each year is designed to place emphasis on the development of character and scholarship in school pupils... It is limited to the graduating class... as being on the threshold of entrance either upon a more extensive education or into the bread-winning world.

"The highest purpose to which the American Legion can devote itself is the cultivation of high character and wholesome ideals in the youth coming to citizenship."

Decreased Gasoline Tax Receipts Mirror Effects of Rationing

Rationing's effect in curtailing automobile use may be seen in a $87,181 county decrease in allotments from Illinois state gasoline tax receipts in 1943, according to a statistical analysis prepared by Barcus, Kindred and company, specialists in Illinois municipal bonds. Total allotments for the county and its principal municipalities declined from $359,642 to $272,481 last year.

Total Illinois allotments dropped $6,220,959, or from $21,525,244 in 1942 to $15,304,285, last year, according to compilations of the state division of highways. Total gasoline tax collections decreased by $7,553,528, or from $42,471,120, to $34,937,592. All indications point to further substantial decreases in 1944.

"The decline in revenue has not confronted the various counties and cities with any serious fiscal problems," Barcus, Kindred and company point out. Funds received from gasoline tax allotments are earmarked for highway construction and repair. Such projects have to be kept to a minimum at present because of wartime shortages of labor, materials and equipment. Therefore, smaller budgets are required."

Damage Suit Filed as Aftermath of Accident

A suit for $10,000 has been filed by Mrs. Adele Anderson, Waukegan, against Phil Fortin, Antioch restaurant owner, for damages in connection with the death of Mrs. Anderson's mother, Mrs. Nettie Broszowski, in an automobile accident.

Mrs. Broszowski was an employee at the Beverly Inn, operated by Fortin, and was being taken to her home when his car collided with an automobile parked on Highway 21 within the Antioch village limits.

Injuries suffered in the collision resulted in her death.

Spring Concert Friday Will Be Well Attended

Student committees have been busy during the past weeks selling tickets for the annual Spring concert to be presented by the chorus, dance band and band of Antioch Township High School Friday evening in the auditorium.

Preliminary reports indicate an excellent attendance.

An attractive program of popular semi-classic and patriotic selections has been arranged, under the direction of Hans von Holwede.

Expect 2,000 at Lions Club Dance Sat., May 20

Pictures and photographs of Abraham Lincoln and his contemporaries were used by Charles Mason, Waukegan, former state's attorney, to illustrate the talk he gave at a meeting of the Antioch Lions club Monday evening at Hanke's Oak tavern.

Mason has made the study of Lincoln's life and times his hobby for many years, and his talk was found both interesting and informative.

A chicken dinner was enjoyed at 7:30 o'clock.

Reports were given on the progress of plans for the "hard times" dance and party to be sponsored by the club Saturday evening, May 20.

A great deal of interest is being shown in the party, it was stated, and on attendance of around 2,000 persons is expected.

Mother's Day Letter

From S/Sgt. O. R. Palaske, "somewhere in Italy," to his mother, Mrs. Julia Palaske—

"Dearest Mother,

"May 14th is by proclamation of the president Mother's Day; but to me it is not. To me every day is Mother's Day, your day, and not just one day set aside. I live for you each day, every hour. I have great plans for the future. Perhaps I'll be able to carry them out, and again I may be able to. In any event, my intentions will always remain—always remain foremost for you."

"I realize now how great my love for you is, and I'm proud of it. I'm proud of the fact that my heart almost breaks from the fullness of my love and at the same time it almost breaks from the pain of the memories of the heartaches I have caused you. I know that I can never repay you for what you have done for me—as no son can ever pay his own mother enough for anything; but I will attempt to do everything in my power during my life to help you and to ease your mind and to increase your joy."

"So rest at ease, dearest mom, and know that while you are always saying a prayer for me, I'll at least be saying a special one for you."

"Your loving son,

"OTTO."

Combat Infantryman Badge Is Conferred on T/5 Robert Allen

With the American Division at Bougainville—"For his satisfactory performance of duty in action against the enemy at Bougainville," T/5 Robert M. Allen, 38, of 856 North Main street, Antioch, Ill., has been awarded the Combat Infantryman badge.

The badge, worn above the left breast pocket, is a silver rifle on a blue field with a silver border, back-grounded by an elliptical wreath.

T/5 Allen is the 240-pound comedian for the division's Special Service section in the American division command post. In civil life he was an MC at many Chicago and Chicago suburb night clubs.

The American, whose name is a combination of America and New Caledonia, is the only name division in combat today. It was the first Army unit to go on the offensive in this war when it went to Guadalcanal in October, 1942, to augment the Marines there, and it fought through to final victory February 9, 1943.

This veteran division is commanded by Major General Robert B. McClure, Palo Alto, Calif., who saw action at Guadalcanal and led the amphibious attack that took Vella Lavelia in the Solomons.

"We are finally getting used to this funny money, the midget English cars, and riding bicycles," reads the latest bulletin from Lt. Orville Winfield, "somewhere in England." "The food is fairly good, but this English weather is terrible."

First Lt. Shirley Hollenbeck Murphy has been assigned to overseas duty and is receiving her mail via the New York army post office.

LT. MILTON H. WEISS IS STATIONED AT GREENSBORO

Greensboro, N. C.—Lt. Milton H. Weiss, 119 South Lafayette boulevard, South Bend, Ind., has arrived at the AAF Overseas Replacement Depot here, where he has been assigned as director of watersafety.

Since entering the army at Camp Grant, Ill., in March, 1942, Lt. Weiss has set up or worked in water safety

Death Ends Long Coroner Career of Dr. Taylor

Libertyville Physician, 77 Years Old, Dies of Heart Attack

Community leaders throughout Lake county gathered at the first Methodist church of Libertyville at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to pay their last tribute to Dr. John L. Taylor, Lake county coroner for 44 years, who died suddenly of a heart attack at his home Saturday evening.

Dr. Taylor, who was 77, had suffered a heart attack Dec. 4, but had recovered sufficiently to resume the work of his office, in which a nephew, Dr. Maurice D. Penney, had been assisting him as deputy coroner.

He was born on a farm near Staceyville, Ia., and attended Cedar Valley academy at Osage. After his graduation from that school, he came to Lake county at the age of 19 and entered Lake Forest academy. He worked part time in a drug store in Libertyville and also acted as news correspondent for the old Waukegan Gazette.

Attended Rush College

He attended the Illinois College of Pharmacy in Chicago and in 1893 entered Rush Medical college. After his graduation he entered on his medical practice in Libertyville.

In November, 1900, he was elected Lake county coroner to succeed Dr. Fremont C. Knight, who was a colorful figure in the earlier days of the county.

He was united in marriage in 1896 to Miss Laura Schenck of Libertyville, who preceded him in death in 1922.

He was married in 1924 to Mrs. Crystal Eaton, who survives. Also surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Paul Pettengill, Mrs. William Krieger and Miss Jeanette Taylor, Libertyville, and a step-son, Pvt. Donald Eaton, stationed at Fort Custer, Mich.

Was Proud of Record

Dr. Taylor was active in the Lake County Medical association and was one of the founders of Condell Memorial hospital at Libertyville.

In addition to his official duties, he had a large private practice and took great pride in the fact that he had presided at the births of more than 3,000 infants and that, of the new mothers, not one had died under his care.

He presided over more than 230

inquests and inquiries, on the average, each year.

Burial was in Lakeside cemetery.

Arnold Hanson, St. Succumbs Following Appendicitis Attack

Father of Antioch Man Passes Away in Evanston Hospital, Aged 56

Arnold J. Hanson, 56, retired Evanston policeman and father of Arnold S. Hanson, proprietor of the Roundup restaurant, Antioch, died Saturday morning at 2 o'clock in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. He had suffered an attack of appendicitis Thursday and was removed to the hospital for an operation, but failed to rally.

After his retirement from the Evanston police force he was for a number of years a private chauffeur.

During the fall and winter months he and his wife, Johanna, who survives, had assisted Arnie and Marie Hanson at the Roundup and had made many friends in this locality.

He was born Dec. 1, 1887, in Copenhagen, Denmark, and while still a resident of that country was united in marriage with Miss Johanna Sand.

The Hanson family came to the United States in 1914.

Survivors include two other sons, Knud and George of Evanston; a daughter, Mrs. Vera Myers of Davenport, Ia., and five grandchildren.

Mr. Hanson's mother, Mrs. August Hanson, is still living, and is a resident of Evanston. A brother, Carl V. Hanson, resides at Round Lake.

Services were held at Alten's funeral chapel in Evanston Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Myers were in Evanston for the services, and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnie Hanson here Tuesday.

Mrs. Carl Carlson and Mrs. Harriet Davis were co-hostesses to the members of the O. E. S. officers' club Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Carlson.

Mrs. Lux, Teacher Here for 25 Years, Honored at Party

P. T. A. School Board, High School Present Gifts at Gathering

Mrs. Charles N. Lux' 25 years of service as a teacher in the Antioch Grade school provided the incentive for a surprise anniversary celebration at which she was honored Monday evening at the schoolhouse.

Announced as a regular meeting of the Grade Parent Teacher association, the real plans for the event had been kept a secret from Mrs. Lux until the opening of the program, which was turned over to Mrs. Myrus Nelson, program chairman.

Mrs. Nelson called upon Principal Richard Whitaere to introduce Mrs. Lux and present to her a beautiful pair of silver earrings set with rhinestones, as the gift of the Parent Teacher association.

Receives War Bond

A $500 war bond was presented to Mrs. Lux by the school board.

Representing students of Antioch Township High school, many of whom had been her pupils while in grade school, Sammy Kiess, president of the student council, presented her a sheaf of 25 red roses.

Refreshments served to the 75 persons attending featured a beautiful anniversary cake made by Mrs. Georgia Nelson. Table decorations featured a centerpiece of white and yellow Jonquils.

New Officers Installed

New officers of the P. T. A. installed during a brief business meeting included Mrs. Dudley Kennedy, president; Mrs. Elmer Baethke, vice-president; Christine Benjamin, secretary; Mrs. William Gray, treasurer. The installation was conducted by W. C. Petty, Lake county superintendent of schools.

Plans were made for the Recreation association dance and party Saturday evening.

Mrs. W. C. Petty read an interesting letter from Mrs. A. G. Simon, a former officer of the P. T. A., who is now in California.

The Grade School P. T. A. is making cookies for the U. S. O. in Waukegan this weekend. Mrs. Elmer Baethke is chairman of the committee.

Tenth District Legion Auxiliary Makes Plans For Poppy Day Events

The observance of "Poppy Day" was among the subjects considered at a meeting held by 75 representatives of the Tenth District American Legion auxiliary last evening in Antioch Township High school auditorium.

Antioch's Poppy Day observance will be held on Saturday, May 27, it was announced.

A talk on "Chicago" was given by Mrs. George Garland, and Mrs. A. H. Kaufman played the Chilean national anthem.

Mrs. Louise Suze of Highwood presided at the meeting, which opened with the presentation of the colors and the oath of allegiance to the flag. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria after the business meeting and program.

Dairy Feed Payment Rates Are Announced

Fifty cents per hundred-weight for milk and eight cents per pound for butterfat are the payment rates for March and April dairy production and sales under the Dairy Feed program, according to C. A. Faulkner, chairman of the Lake County AAA. Evidence of sales for these two months should be filed on one application; preferably by mail, as soon as April statements are received, it has been announced.

An announcement of the rates for the period from May 1944, to and through March 1945 has been received, Faulkner states. Evidence representing sales made during May, June, July and August will be handled on a single application, and rates for that period will be 35 cents per hundred-weight for milk and 6 cents per pound for butterfat.

Rates which will apply for sales made during the remaining months of 1944 and January, February and March of 1945 will be 60 cents per hundred-weight for milk and 10 cents per pound for butterfat, according to present plans.

More Distribution—Less Regulation?

The Committee for Economic Development, postwar planning organization, has organized 1,230 communities in every state for concrete postwar planning. Although the first phase of the CED program was to stimulate postwar production planning, current attention is now being directed toward wholesale and retail distribution, to get the big and little stores on Main street to make their plans for greater postwar sales and more jobs.

War creates a "sellers' market." Demand exceeds supply in practically all lines. As a result of this abnormal condition there is a dangerous tendency to overlook the fact that production alone will not assure jobs and prosperity. Efficient distribution must follow closely on the heels of production and it is encouraging to note that the problems of retail merchants are beginning to be included in the thinking of the planning agencies.

A problem of paramount importance to retailers and consumers is the handicap of efficient distribution embodied in wartime regulatory measures which remove store management to bureaus in Washington, while leaving the burden of keeping out of bankruptcy to the merchant. This is the effect of much price-fixing and rationing, which distributors have accepted as necessary evils of the war emergency. After the war, these emergency measures should be removed as quickly as possible, thus putting retail management back where it belongs behind the counters of tens of thousands of individual stores throughout the land.

If full benefit is to be derived from American production, wartime as well as peacetime, legislative brakes on efficient distribution must be released.

We Speak of Incentives

As a rational animal, man never works without a definite objective. In other words, he must have an incentive. During war, patriotism supplies an incentive, but in times of peace men generally demand financial recognition of their efforts.

Recent announcements of incentive rewards by American business demonstrate how it recognizes that man puts forth his best efforts when paid according to his worth. General Motors Corporation, for instance, paid $955,000 to employees who offered 25,400 constructive suggestions during 1943.

What is true of the individual worker's need for an incentive is equally true of companies of men bandied together for tasks too difficult for individual workers alone. If one man makes his maximum effort when there is hope of recognition and reward, it is reasonable to expect stockholders to do so. For the stockholder is only the worker—a truck driver, a clerk, or perhaps a widow with insurance money to invest. If the economic climate is such that investments promise dividends and a measure of safety, such people put their savings into the stocks of companies that build plants and furnish jobs.

Has anybody a plan for demonstrating these truths to the men framing our postwar tax laws in Washington?

SPRING HOUSECLEANING

... it's "Check-up" time for your appliances and lamps

TIME

Make way for Spring! Clean up, paint up, brighten up your home to welcome the queen of the seasons! And remember—housecleaning time is the time to check over your electric appliances and lamps.

Turn vacuum bag inside out, brush thoroughly. Do not wash it. Clean brush. Properly adjust nozzle and brush. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for lubrication.

Defrost. Wash inside, shelves, coils, etc., with baking soda and lukewarm water. Dry. Talcum gasket. Wash exterior with warm, soapy water—dry. Oil mechanism if not sealed.

Clean iron when cool, using damp cloth. To remove starch, use small bag of salt or paraffin on hot iron. Never use knives on iron. Do not wind cord around hot iron.

Ask for our booklet on "Lighting and Lamps." It's easy to clean lampshades and easy to make them almost new again. Replacing lamp shades with light will improve illumination.

Clean lighting equipment gives up to 30% more light. Remove and wash bowls and reflectors. Clean bulbs with damp cloth; use soap and water if very dirty. Never place bulbs in water.

Mrs. R. Stimpfl, Loon Lake, was understandably impressed when she received the following epistle from her son, Lt. (jg) Rudy K. Stimpfl, care of Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Calif.—

On the Island "X"
In the South Pacific
April 1944
(General Letter No. 2)

Dear Folks:
Gee, four months since my last letter. That's the amazing thing about life in the tropics. Life down here is filled with so many bewildering controversies. One minute it's hot and sticky—and the next thing you know, there's a cooling rain which momentarily water-washes the air; a respite to the "X" F. hot house climate; then, as you take a stroll through a clearing in the jungle, you will see thousands of crawling insects, birds and reptiles, all quite full of life—and if you look closer they are either hunting, stalking, eating, or storing some other insects, birds, or reptiles which are either quite dead or will be dead just as soon as they're caught; and as a third point in illustrating this tropical confusion, after going several days without receiving any "sugar reports" from Fernie, and the days seem like they're dragging by, all of a sudden along comes a nice mail call with maybe 60 letters and the world starts turning again. But, all in all it's good duty considering circumstances, and interesting things are continuously happening, so I'll "chip my teeth" on a few more things that can't be told.

Far our wet weather the Navy issue of rain gear is really "right on." We have a cloak-like garment known as a "poncho" which goes on over your head and drapes down loosely all around your body. Its loose fit leaves plenty of room to conveniently carry arms or papers with security in the most deluging downpour. And, brother, that's what the rains out here amount to. But we're a lot better off than we were a year ago because of our fine drainage systems and coral walks and roads.

And speaking of roads, we have some fine ones down here. This coral packs into a hard macadam-like surface that is really the next thing to pavement, and with our U.S. highway markers they look strictly "State-Side."

But where you all run over jack rabbits and cotton tails, we run over crabs. Yes, on some of the roads near the beach it's darn near impossible to drive 15 m.p.h. and miss the crabs that swarm over the road as those queer creatures which walk sideways as easily as they do forward make their nocturnal migration from the ocean to the jungle.

Recently we had an unusual treat in the way of entertainment. The big event was a USO show which featured Ray Milland and 3 beautiful MGM starlets that were really lovely "Hunks of Femininity." These girls caused a riot whenever they asked for any sailors from the audience to volunteer their help with some little act, skit or prank. One blonde asked 10 fellows to volunteer their help with an act and before she could get "squared away" the stage was packed. And can you blame them since the reward for this help was—yes, you guessed it—a kiss? Believe me, the mate population in the States won't have a chance when this crowd hits here. WOW!

Other recent highlights in the entertainment field have been "Lost Angel" and "Thousands Cheer." They were each grand shows. You MUST see them.

Note—Censorship regulations require that this letter be sent by surface mail only.

There's a very unique building on a nearby plantation which I think you'll enjoy hearing about. It's of concrete construction and there are louvers running up each sloping roof to the main tower over the living room which keep the building naturally ventilated on even the hottest days. It is certainly an innovation in architecture for any climate but, to my knowledge, makes its first appearance down here in the tropics in the natural habitat of the chambered nautilus which it so closely resembles.

Incidentally, there's quite a contest going on right now between me and

MILLBURN

Mothers of the community and especially the mothers of the boys and girls in the service will be honored at the church services Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. H. M. Herrick spent the weekend with her daughter, Miss Billie Herrick, who is a student at the State Teachers College at Normal, Ill., and remained until Wednesday for a special program at the school.

W. C. Upton returned home Saturday after a business trip through Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Minnesota in the interest of the Veterans Association of the North West Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nielsen and son of Waukegan spent Sunday afternoon at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Anna Bauman.

Ralph Dodge and son, Ralph, Jr., of Oak Park were dinner guests at the J. S. Denman home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Anderson and daughter, Rebecca, and Mrs. Anna Bauman were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Olson of Waukegan Saturday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. L. H. Messersmith, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Denman, Miss Alice Denman and Miss Margaret Denman and nine members of her Sunday School class attended the Zion Passion Play Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Robert Bonner of Kankakee, Wis., spent Sunday at the Gordon Bonner home.

YOU can lose your home, your automobile, your savings, and all that you value, if you have to meet the verdict reached by a jury for injuries sustained on your property.

Residence Liability Insurance will defend you in such action and pay the damages up to the limit of your insurance.

SELF-CLEANING HOUSE PAINT STAYS WHITE

Home Owners Get Whiter White Houses with Paint Developed Scientifically by DuPont.

DuPont House Paint is so brilliantly white because it's made with titanium dioxide, the whitest paint pigment known to science! This paint stays white, too, because—

It's Self-Cleaning

DuPont House Paint is so formulated that, as time goes by, a microscopically fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this powder away, taking dust and dirt with it, and leaving the surface clean and white again. (Excessive accumulations of dirt, particularly in sooty industrial communities, or in heavily shaded locations, may delay or interfere with this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Guards the Surface

DuPont House Paint forms a beautiful, durable coating that protects against rust, rot and decay. Also available in popular tints.

Yet DuPont House Paint costs no more than other good paints. Call in a reliable painter. He'll be glad to use DuPont House Paint.

"HOSPITAL DAY" WILL BE OBSERVED AT DOWNEY, MAY 14

Persons interested in attending Hospital Day observance at the Veterans' Hospital, Downey, Ill., on Sunday, May 14, may notify Mrs. Agnes Hills, rehabilitation chairman of the Antioch American Legion auxiliary, or Mrs. Anne Heath, president, for information. It was announced at a meeting of the auxiliary last Wednesday evening.

Guides will be available at the hospital to conduct visitors through the buildings and grounds in order that they may become acquainted with the work being done for hospitalized ex-service men.

Mrs. Heath stated that 11 dozen cookies were sent to the U. S. O. in Waukegan by the auxiliary, and that the organization has assisted in making lap robes for wheel chair patients at Downey.

Mrs. Lester Garland, the speaker of the evening, gave an interesting talk on "Chile," which she described as "a valiant nation that has struggled out of the pit of depression into what appears to be a new economic order; a nation of great beauty, of sun and shadow and cordilleras — of contrasts."

The country, she said, may be considered in three main parts, "the arid, treasure-laden north, the temperate, populous center, and the dank, chilly south."

The Chileans are making rapid progress in social legislation, said Mrs. Garland, and may be expected to play an important part in the post-war development of South America.

Refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed afterward, with Mmes. Hills, Garland, Ernest Glenn and Thomas Killoran and Miss Elizabeth Webb as the hostesses.

On Wednesday, May 10, the local auxiliary will be hostess to the Tenth District organization at a meeting to be held in the Antioch Township High school auditorium.

Mrs. Elmer Hunter installed the newly elected officers of the Round Lake Parent Teacher association on Wednesday evening.

CHAPTER XVI

The Dutch made us steel tripods for them in a machine shop, but we had a hell of a time getting anyone to dig the holes. We were flying missions and couldn't do it ourselves. So Silva and I took the truck and went into Madura. On the street corners we saw a bunch of natives standing around picking their teeth or scratching their bottoms. We argued they must be Jap sympathizers, or else they would have been busy helping win the war. So we pulled out our .45's, and by a coincidence they all got into that truck, and dug us some of the deepest foxholes you ever saw. After that, when the alarm would go off we could run to those foxholes and swing a gun—we knocked down five Zeros with them in the short time we were there.

We were fixing up our planes, too. Our tail guns had finally cured the Japs of making attacks from behind. Now they were coming in at all directions, hunting for our soft spots, feeling us out like we were some dame on a sofa, but mostly they were hitting us head-on, because they discovered that in the nose we had only a single little .30-caliber. I guess the designers, after putting in these tail guns, had figured they could rest on their laurels, but you can never do that long in a war.

"So we got busy there on Madura Field. We mounted a big .50-caliber down in the navigator's compartment, rigging it so it would fire out of the ventilator. And for good measure we stuck in another .30-caliber.

"Since then they're carrying out this idea at the factory, but the only way any factory can learn what is needed is from the combat crews themselves.

"Those Jap pilots were smart. They'd fly their machines dressed like natives, so if they bailed out they could just walk away and mingle with the crowd. But we weren't afraid of them—even dying in the small numbers we had to. In the States a formation would be twenty-seven planes. Out there it was usually three or six. Three of us would be flying along, fifteen or twenty Zeros were hit, and we'd come back with a score of eight or nine. May be not all demolished, but hit so they had to leave—we'd see them going down in crazy spirals. We learned some tricks about those most attacks. When we'd get to the target and had separated, each picking our transport, and the Zeros would hit us head-on, the pilot would point his plane directly at the Zero. This cut down the Zero's raking power, because it gave him a smaller silhouette. We were in his sights for a shorter time. We'd get some close shaves, though. I remember one day off Bali—we were out there bothering a Jap destroyer we could glimpse from time to time as the clouds sailed past—when all of a sudden over the interphones: 'Zeros coming up!' At first I heard nothing, and then our top turret gun started hammering—old Red up there couldn't get his guns that far down, but I guess he was just firing for the hell of it. Then all of a sudden—whoosh! A Zero came up right square in front of my compartment window, so damned close I could see his guns smoking as they fired, even see the lands inside his wing gun barrels—almost head-on. He came up and over, and old Britt got him as he turned down behind.

"That was the week I got into something way over my head in this liaison work," said Frank, "but first you ought to look at that big de luxe hotel which was the unofficial capital of Java. Its lobby, bar, and dining room were crowded with uniforms—British, Dutch, and American. It looked like a Hollywood costume parade.

"It was an enormous high-ceilinged spacious thing, open to the soft Javanese air—little tropical birds would fly in and out of the dining room and roost on the gleaming chandeliers.

"The Dutch are great eaters, and they have something they call reis-tafel. You order it and then sit back and eat while twenty-three waiters line up and walk by your table, each carrying a different sauce or fish or bowl of relish or rice. I tried it once and managed to live by eating only every other course, but your true colonial Dutchman will stoke in all twenty-three into his big pot, drenching the layers down with mugs of beer.

"In the bar you might see the boys of Patrol Wing 10 from reconnaissance, drinking Daiquiris (this hotel was Navy billeting headquarters), and often I would see my old Hollywood High School classmate John Robertson sitting there in his off hours, very handsome in his Naval pilot's uniform, and with him was the most beautiful girl in Surabaya.

"She had dark hair, and an almost ghostly pale face that was sad in repose. Then a smile would quickly light it up, and you'd wonder how you could ever have thought that. And the most beautiful legs in the city. When she'd walk through the bar clinging to John's arm and looking up at him, even the oldest and crabblest admiral would rustle a little in his chair and lean out to give them a formal inspection. The younger Naval pilots envied John to the point where they would have eaten his guts if they hadn't liked him so much.

"John was very busy and I don't think he gave her much thought, but still it's nice to have the most beautiful girl in town crazy about you, to the point where it even bothers the admirals.

"She was, so they said, a very high Dutch socialite and had lots of money, which you might guess by how simple and expensive her evening dresses were. In the daytime she wore a beautifully tailored uniform of one of the woman's volunteer organizations. I think she drove a car for the Dutch General Staff.

"Meanwhile my job was growing by leaps and jumps. In that hotel dining room you might see General Wavell, the British Commander in Chief, or Admiral Hart, or General Brett, who commanded the United reely on me, but I had the feeling it was I he was interested in.

"Two nights later Lieutenant Jacquot came up from Molang. By the time we had finished work it was so late I suggested he'd better spend the night with me. I put my brief case under my pillow as usual. On this particular night it contained something so important I didn't even like to talk about it now. Maybe that was why I slept uneasily. Or maybe because the whole outlook for the war was so bad. I realized in the Philippines I had only been lucky, and I might never get out of Java. It was very hot, and in the distance a thunderstorm was muttering as it moved toward the city.

"Anyway, I'd been slightly asleep for about an hour when a glare awoke me. It was a flashlight held very close—a haze of yellow light coming through the mosquito netting over my face. But in this haze I could see that the same fist which held the flashlight also held a steel knife, and that its point stuck down into the yellow cone of that flashlight. The other hand was just touching the edge of my pillow.

"I gave a yell and dived through that netting like a cut, but the yellow light instantly waked out, and I was standing there alone in the darkness, while Jacquot rolled out on the other side. He hadn't been as nervous as I, and was sleeping more deeply. But just then a blue lightning flash lit up the room, nad by its quick glare I saw the door into the corridor closing (I was sure I had locked it). But when I got into the corridor it seemed empty.

"Why hadn't he stabbed me? I think because he was surprised to find Jacquot there. One of us would surely have been able to make an outcry. And I thought to myself, 'Well, stranger, for a newcomer you're sure getting into a lot of things, because you never thought some guy you didn't know and had never bothered would ever try to kill you through mosquito netting in a place called Java.' The brief case was okay."

"And the queer thing was," said Margo, "that just at this time the report got back to America that Frank was dead. He'd been killed in a flying accident in Java. I was down in Florida by then, and the only man I could really talk to was Cliff Jensen, an Air Corps boy we had known at March and Albuquerque, and later at Morrison Field.

"He was stationed near by, and now was working twenty-one hours a day for the rest of the gang who were fighting in Java. I could really talk to Cliff—we understood each other. The rumor that Frank was dead somehow reached Australia, and of course the Air Corps is a small place. In a few days Colonel Truesdell in California heard it from one of the ferry pilots, and a few days later Cliff heard of it. He didn't tell me, because he wasn't quite sure, but some people thought it had really happened.

"I could feel the difference. They were looking at me querulously. They would say what a fine boy Frank had been! Of that they were praying for his safe return. They never understand. They can't see that what you're anxious about is not the distant future, but this very night. Is he hungry? Must he go out on a mission? Maybe he's been badly hurt during the day, and you don't know it yet.

"Praying that everything will be all right during those weeks and months to come scares you—it's asking too much, you're afraid. You just pray he's all right tonight, and isn't wounded, and will get enough sleep, so he'll be strong and alert and have a good chance tomorrow. You don't dare ask more."

"Also those strong plump sunburned men who could leave their business for months to lie around on the Florida sands were very 'realistic' about the war—sure it was all a terrible mess and everything was going to pieces, offering me lots of sympathy. But what had any of them ever done to get us a decent Air Force in the past? Or what good were they or their 'realism' doing anyone now? I liked Cliff's better. He knew what the boys were up against and was up half the night trying to hurry reinforcements. Out of the little we had (and he knew how little), so they could hold what they could. Cliff made sense. The rest was a nightmare."

"When we'd first hit Java," said Frank, "we'd been full of the offensive spirit—sure we were going to roll the Japs back off the Philippines onto Formosa, with those thousand planes which, according to rumor, were coming within three months. The second month was almost up now, Java was undamaged under our feet, and we'd so far received about two dozen P-40's, maybe a few more. Forts than that, and seven dive bombers. Hardly fifty planes in all.

"Now we knew the offensive was out for the time being. What we prayed for was fighters—to defend what was left of our Forts and those beautifully camouflaged Dutch airfields. With fighters to hold them off, we knew we could hold Java."

"All right, suppose the Japs had moved into Timor and cut the jugular vein from Australia, so that our P-40's could no longer hop on the island chain to us on their belly tanks? Why not a carrier? Couldn't the Navy just one—which could load up with P-40's in Australia and then, when it was still several hundred miles from Java, and out of range of the Jap bombers, it could turn the P-40's loose, let them fly in to us, and go back for another load?"

The same fist which held the flashlight also held a steel knife.

Nations Air Force, or Van Oeyen, the Dutch Commander in Chief, I was circulating among the tables, and my brief case was so crammed with hot information I wouldn't trust it in a checkroom.

"There was a feeling of tension. Refugees had been crowding in from Singapore and Sumatra. Now there was a feeling that maybe they'd be crowding out soon. Lots of the natives had already left, and those servants who remained you knew were staying only because they were very loyal. But to whom? Maybe to the Dutch. Or maybe to someone else—staying around to watch us, revealing information we knew not how, or to whom. You couldn't be sure of anything.

"Except that I knew they were watching me, maybe only out of idle curiosity as I circulated from one table to the other, and kept that brief case leaning against my leg when I sat at my own table.

"That hotel certainly wasn't built to keep military secrets. The big high-ceilinged bedrooms had only swinging half-doors like barrooms—open to the air above and below. The barefoot native servants looked after them, only I'd catch them slipping in and out of mine at queer times of the day. But I thought I only imagined it. I also suspected they were listening in the corridor outside. One evening a couple of the pilots were down from Malang—going back the same night—sitting on my bed while we talked over new orders, and somehow a feeling grew on me we were being watched. I whispered to the others to go on talking, slipped off my shoes, tiptoed to the door. Just as I opened it I caught a glimpse of a white robe flitting around the corner. When I got out into the blacked-out corridor, I could see nothing. But then I was sure.

"That night I slept with my brief case under my pillow. In addition every bed was provided with a Dutch widow. At first the American pilots didn't know what to make of this and would kick them out on the floor. I should maybe explain that a Dutch widow is a long padded holder, and if you sleep with it between your knees, it keeps your legs from pressing together and sweating in the tropical heat. After a while the pilots began to like them.

"But that night I went to sleep wondering about the white shape I'd seen lit around the corner. It seemed about the same size as the waiter who had been staring at me in the dining room for the past three days. Only staring isn't quite the word. Because this particular little chili-picker had glassy eyes like a turtle. I could never catch them di-

CHAPTER XVII

"We dreamed and prayed for this. And as a matter of fact the Navy did make an attempt. An aircraft leader was loaded with P-40's and started out from Australia. But what happened was just what was feared. Those P-40's were in crates stacked high on her decks, so she had to come clear in through skies the Jap bombers ruled. She went down with her entire crew, and those crated P-40's forty miles off the southwest coast of Java—but I'm sure the Navy was doing the best it could for us with what they had.

"Of course it gave our morale a kick in the belly. Late the next afternoon young Jack Dale (he'd won his spurs in the Philippines with the 17th Pursuit) came in from Gnooro on a personal mission from Major Bud Sprague. When he'd finished it stayed a few minutes.

"When he first came into Java he'd been a real sparkplug quarterback for the rest of the boys. When the alarm would sound, he'd jump to his feet, slap them on the back, and yell, 'Let's go, gang!' But now he looked tired. He'd been living, sleeping, eating under the wing of his plane for weeks—when he wasn't upstairs fighting. Yet now, he said, they could hardly stay in the air because they were operating about ten P-10's against as many as fifty or seventy-five Jap fighters, swarming up from carriers off in the Java Sea. 'Frank,' he said, weary, 'when we first got here, I'd run for my cockpit thinking, "How many am I going to get this morning?" But now when I get off I catch myself wondering, "Will it be my turn today?"'

"The next night a Navy man who had just got in from our little fleet told me what had happened to the Marblehead and the Houston, those two beautiful cruisers which had been the nucleus of our Asiatic Fleet—helping the Dutch and Australians defend Java. With the rest of the fleet they'd been out in the Java Sea. When they sighted a Jap recon plane overhead about noon, they knew they were in for trouble. They had no carrier, of course, which could send a fighter up to shoot it down. He said the Jap bombers presently came over them from their bases in Borneo and the Celebes (our bases they had captured) in three waves, spaced about half an hour apart. By skillful maneuvering they dodged the bombs of the first two waves. But the third, which crippled them, caught them just at sundown, and chewed their superstructures into steel spaghetti.

"In the darkness, they were able to crawl away out of range, and the Marblehead eventually got back to the States. My friend, who was an old-line blue-water surface sailor, praised the clever maneuvering which enabled her to survive at all, and I didn't say anything, because I know what those poor guys had gone through. Only in that position, with the Japs absolutely in control of the air, they stood a ninety per cent chance of getting found and hit. No doubt their maneuvering was good. God knows I had sympathy for them. When I think of being down there on the surface, helplessly dodging and twisting to wriggle away from bombs, it gives me nightmares.

"But troubles of our own were looming ahead. The boys in Navy Patrol Wing 10 came in with the report that their planes on reconnaissance had sighted a force of six Jap transports and five warships headed toward Bali Strait, which divides Java from Bali. They were after the Den Passar airdrome on Bali—our last stepping-stone—having already occupied the airfield at Timor. This was, as maybe you now begin to see, a war of airmen—Clark Del Monte, Kendari, Samalinda, Kupang, all of them lost pearls in the United Nations defenses, and now Den Passar. Next it could only be Malang, KNILM, Groot, and Madura—all was left on the strand. Seldom in this war did the Japs make a brutal assault; always it was the skillful sargeon's technique—isolate and occupy the airdromes and then you have the country. It was a game we knew well too, but you've got to buy chips before they will deal you a hand, and we didn't have the equipment.

"All I can say is the Dutch and Americans were ready to defend Bali with what we had. Our little surface gavies moved in that night to clip them a glancing blow on the strand. Seldom in this war did the Japs make a brutal assault; always it was the skillful sargeon's technique—isolate and occupy the airdromes and then you have the country. It was a game we knew well too, but you've got to buy chips before they will deal you a hand, and we didn't have the equipment.

"In all the evenings that were left (there were not to be many) I avoided that lobby, because it was haunted by a ghost—a pretty, pale, fear-filled face that came running up to you and asked, with hope forced into a frightened smile, if you had seen John. To me the most frightening ghost of all—the ghost of a dead love which will not die.

"But there's something else that should be told, only I must go back in the story a little. The Army had sent a high ground officer to Surabaya on a special mission of great importance, and with about a million dollars deposited to his credit in the Javische Bank. With this he was to buy and equip with supplies three blockade runners which would carry to Corregidor ammunition, medical supplies, and food for those poor devils on Batavia who were still fighting on. Two of the ships had already left. A third was almost ready to go.

"This officer left Java the twenty-sixth of February. The day after he left, his assistant, a young second lieutenant, called me up in considerable anxiety. His chief, he explained, had paid him the compliment of leaving him in Surabaya in charge of completing the arrangements.

"Nothing remained to be done except the most important thing of all: the officer before leaving had been unable to find a radio operator for this last ship. Without one they could not start, because unless they gave a prearranged radio signal egg from. But all right, there the job was to do, and so Bud climbed into the cockpit.

"How many passes at the target are we going to make?" someone asked.

"Depends on how many wild hairs I'm sprouting when we get over her," says Bud with a grin, and they were off.

"He led them cold pigeon into that Jap barrage over the Ball beach—Hell—back here, the people don't know that boy ever did a thing out there—and the other boys saw him go down in on his run—and never come up again. Yet his boys—what are left of them—still like to hope maybe he succeeded in landing on that Ball beach, which looks so nice in the travel folders, and will turn up grinning some day, telling them what a social success he was with the natives.

"But it was pitiful. We lost almost all our dive bombers there, and about half our P-40 fighters. Of course Bud and his gang made the Japs pay ten to one for taking that airfield—but the Japs had it to pay.

"With the Japs holding that Ball field, they could send bombers and fighters into every corner of Java, and we knew it was almost over. But anyway the Forts could now bomb our own field the Japs had taken from us—very convenient, because we knew exactly where every-thing was.

"When I got back late to the hotel there was that beautiful Dutch girl, the one with the black hair and the pale face which was so wistfully sad in repose. Only there were no sudden little smiles lighting it up now. She was at the table where she and John Robertson were when they approached Corregidor, the Rock's guns would blow them to pieces. Could the Air Force possibly let them have a radio operator? Since the mission was a dangerous one, the assistant said he would pay a man who volunteered a bonus out of the money his chief had left in the bank.

"Now asking our Colonel for a radio operator was like asking him for his right arm. But Javo was caving in, the situation was tense. Our Colonel hesitated, and then said that while he couldn't order anyone on so dangerous a mission, he thought, even after we exploded clearly what it was, we could get a volunteer.

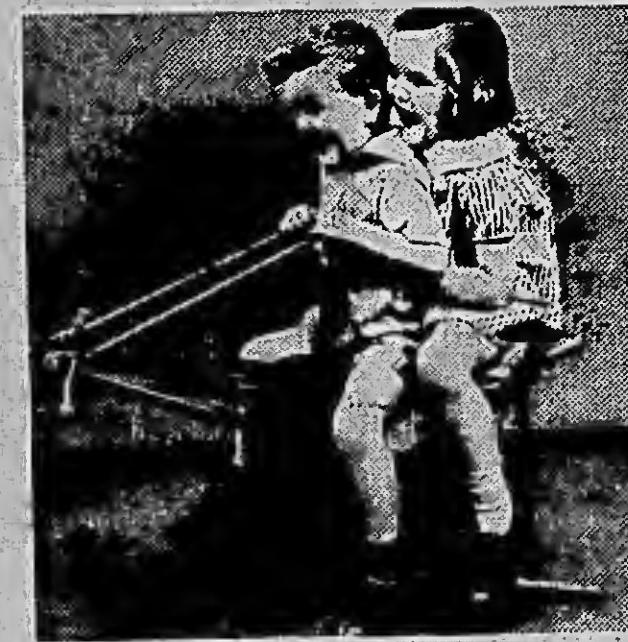

"And we did. We told the men the mission was most dangerous but of the greatest possible service to our country. And out of the line stepped Sergeant Warrenfeltz. Only after this did I tell him of the five-thousand-dollar bonus. We let Warrenfeltz go down and look over the ship, landed with surgical equipment, food, drugs, and three hundred thousand rounds of .30-caliber ammunition, so that she was practically a floating bomb. He talked to the captain (a Swede) and looked over the Negro and Chinese crew. There were two—one for topside dressed like Javanese natives so the Japs might mistake her for a fishing trawler. Theo Warrenfeltz came to me with written orders from the bomber command and I told him the ports of call. They were to slip out at night down the north coast of Java, through Lombok Strait, then along the Netherlands East Indies, then cut up east of the Celebes, running the Jap blockade into the Philippines till they came to Manila Bay entrance, where they would be challenged by the Rock. And he was to answer on the radio with the proper signal.

"Then he asked what were the other ports of call. So I told him (it makes me creep to repeat it) they were then to run the blockade through the Jap-mandated islands past Guam (now held by the Japs) to Honolulu.

"What else?" asked Warrenfeltz, grinning. He was grinnig for anything. And I told him his third and last port of call would be New York. And then what? he wanted to know. I told him if he got that far, he was to have himself some fun, and I was sitting down now to write him out an order for thirty days' leave.

"He knew what he was getting into. We'd been flying over those waters for months; he knew just how thick the Jap surface ships were, and also that they had hardly a fifty per cent chance of escaping being blown up by a Jap mine just outside the breakwater. Why did he do it? To help those poor devils in the infantry, dying on Batavia. He'd seen the cargo. And then the money—he told me exactly what to do with that, and the message I must send, but we'll come to it later. Of course it was all pretty irregular, paying a man for heroism. Maybe when peace comes, somebody in a swivel chair in Washington will start writing us letters asking us why we did it, and I don't know what we'll say. And then it all ended happily for us, because the money Warrenfeltz was supposed to receive for trying to do what he did was never paid

It means something to all these people when you buy a War Bond

WHEN YOU BUY a War Bond, it affects a great many people.

FIRST, it buys weapons for the American boys overseas.

SECOND, it encourages our fighting allies, by demonstrating that the American people are in this scrap to the finish.

THIRD, it brings cheer to the starving and oppressed in Nazi-occupied territories, because it means a quicker end of hunger and tyranny.

FOURTH, it discourages Hitler and Tojo—and is a punch at the morale of the German and Japanese home fronts.

FIFTH, it helps to guarantee peace and liberty to future generations of Americans.

AND THE BLANK SPACE? Put yourself in that picture. For when you buy a War Bond, it certainly means as much to you as to anyone else in the world.

It's a wonderfully advantageous way to invest your money. It pays $4 for every $3 you put in. It's safe. And it'll give you a financial nest egg—a nest egg you can use after the war for such things as buying a home, educating your children, and traveling.

So buy more War Bonds right now—TODAY!
